Chessable and Chess.com at the Pan-Am

By Dr. Alexey Root, WIM

The Pan-American Intercollegiate Team Chess Championship (Pan-Am) was January 5-8, 2023, It was covered in the Seattle Times on January 7: <https://www.seattletimes.com/seattle-news/the-college-national-championship-not-the-one-you-think-is-this-weekend-in-seattle/>

Eighty-five teams from 48 colleges and universities across North America participated. See <https://cea.gg/pages/panam> for the results. Each team was composed of four undergraduate or graduate students (mostly undergraduates) and alternates were allowed too.

I spoke at the opening ceremony and closing ceremony, plus I helped with the Chess.com booth. Also speaking at the opening ceremony was Bob Ferguson, Washington State Attorney General. I attach a photo of me (in a Chessable shirt) with Ferguson, who is a chess master. I also attach the cover of Northwest Chess from December 1978, when Bob and I were 13 years old.

At the Pan-Am, university students and faculty members learned about the Chessable Research Awards: <https://www.chessable.com/blog/chessable-research-awards-winners/>.

chessable.com/blog/chessable-research-awards-winners/. The “Summer” cycle of applications opens January 15 and closes March 15, with the winners to be announced on May 15. There are three cycles of awards each year: Spring, Summer, and Fall. Any chess-themed topics may be submitted for consideration and ongoing or new chess research is eligible.

Chess.com promoted its College Ambassador Program, <https://www.chess.com/news/view/college-ambassador-program>, and its Collegiate Chess League, <https://www.chess.com/news/view/chesscom-announces-ccl-2022-2023>.

This is hard. Hard indeed. Every day I see something I want to share, but there's no longer a two-way communication to be had. Politics, religion, science fiction, general silliness, life's adventures, trials, and tribulations; all were things that Philip and I discussed whenever we needed a sounding board, a non-judgmental ear, a friend.

My last text to my dear friend Philip, sent December 29, 2022:

"Rumor is you died hiking on Christmas. Please confirm or deny."

No response. That's a bad sign.

Just three weeks prior to that, on December 7, 2022, he was inviting me on a January camping trip to Big Bend National Park in Texas:

"Interested in some "camping" in January in Big Bend? More Glamping, as it is in a trailer. No power or water, but a comfy mattress. Two actually. [...] It was ecstasy last December. And, oh those stars!"

On November 11, 2022 he was talking about some physical ailments:

"Thinking of getting several back operations now. Feet fall asleep unless I crouch. Right arm falls asleep unless I either hold it straight up or bend my neck sharply forward. Getting kind of fed up with it. And yet it still has no effect on tennis."

Ah, the joys of aging. He had just had stitches removed from a serious hand wound (I'll spare you the accompanying photo) incurred in a tennis fall.

"Hand still feels like it is broken, but at least it is my left hand, and the stitches are out. Whine, whine, whine."

On December 1, 2022 he sent a picture:

"Twins!" (I suggested, attempting to reference his famous photo of Gary Dorfner)

"Symbiotes!" (Philip improved.)

In an email on December 19, 2022, he wrote:

"Heading out for solo camping Friday to the dark skies of Devil's River. A pleasant little breeze. Good thing I'll be at the top of a ridge to get the full effect!"

Clearly, he was doing something he loved, probably pushing the envelope to get the best photograph. That was his style.

One of the things I find myself saying lately is, "Life only gives you one fatal mistake." Philip was a risk taker. He did fairly extreme things. You want examples?

Philip, December 28, 2021:

"Here is my most recent "lost" story (more to come)..."

"So I spent Christmas evening on a viewing point over the Rio Grande. Maybe a mile from my car. [...]"

"Sunset around 6:00. There were around 30-50 people up there (Rio Grande village nature trail)."

"By about 6:20, I was alone. Pretty darkish at 6:30. Still some red clouds though. So I was enjoying the light show."

"So I kept watching the sky, enjoying the solitude."

"Around 6:45, I started to hear cross border traffic. I'd hear the clapping of hoofs, shallow water splashing on the far bank (I presume), then deep water swishes in the water, then louder shallow water splashing on the near bank."

"And then a few minutes later the entire process was repeated a second time."

"I didn't have a flashlight, so thought maybe I should try to find my car. Coming off a steep hill. In the dark. There was still a little bit of red in the sky, so I could sort of see the path, and I used my tripod to double check on the larger steps, so I didn't stumble too badly."

"Of course I got sorta lost, so was wandering around roads and trails adjacent to the Rio Grande in the dark. Carrying two cameras, a bottle of water, and walking stick. My phone was almost out of power, so I didn't want to use it for light and ruin my night sight."

"I suppose a couple of horses might have just happened to wait until just after dark to swim the Rio Grande. Or maybe it was some tourists. Who didn't want to disturb the night by talking. Or using a light."

"Or cross border human or drug trafficking."

I replied:

"Love these stories."

"Possibly interesting insight. In life, you tend to be quite adventurous, going to Australia, camping on" your own, sitting in the wilderness along the US/Mexico border at night, nearly dying in riptides, dehydrating on a long hike (getting lost, etc.), dodging boulders being shed by glaciers, flying airplanes, driving 100 mph, skydiving... In chess you were rather the opposite, tending to grab material and cover up, trying to stay safe.

“I, on the other hand, was more apt to try chess gambits, attack, sacrifice, and play dynamically. But in life, I tend to see worrisome threats and risks, drive at the speed limit, stay at home... See where I’m going with this?”

Philip, December 29, 2021

“Interesting observation. In chess I tend to play pretty conservatively. Grubbing for a pawn and then go for a slowly improving position (until I blunder).

“In life, a bit more risky, now that you mention it.

“Two more stories then...

“I hiked down to the Window. It was a fascinating hike. One hikes down to a notch in the mountains that is maybe four feet wide.

“Hiking down into it, at one point you are hiking along a forested stream bed. Or rather a flash flood course. But you are in dim shade, with a temperature of about 55 degrees. Then you get a sudden blast of wind coming out of the Window, and suddenly the ambient air temperature is about 75 degrees. For a few seconds, then the breeze passes, and you are back to 55 degrees.

“Or perhaps the breeze will hit in a more turbulent manner, and the temperature will fluctuate 20 degrees with every few steps you take for a couple of minutes.

“I eventually got to the Window. I was about ten feet from a 500 foot dropoff. Ahhh, but I saw I could get closer.

“There was a very slick section of rock, like a dry water slide. It was only about four feet long, with maybe three vertical feet, and after that you have three or four feet of what would be a narrow pool. After that, a massive lethal drop.

“ “Ahh ha” thought I, “I can get closer to the edge.” I couldn’t walk down, as my feet would have slid out under me, so I sat down and used it [the slick section of rock] as a slide, which was somewhat exhilarating, as if there was a freak accident (my feet getting caught somewhere and causing me to somersault off a cliff, for instance) ...

“Generally a three foot slide isn’t very exhilarating. But when you add the possibility of a deadly fall at the end of it, it gets your heart ramped up a bit.

“ “The Window” shows the four mile hike to get there. I hate hikes that are downhill at the start, then all uphill on the way back...”

Here’s a picture and email from December 31, 2021:

“Canyon hike. The hike comes to an end in a pouroff.

“I stood around for five or ten minutes trying to decide if I could navigate it. I was sure I could get down (what with gravity and all). But I didn’t think I could get back up. And it would have been awkward if I was trapped in a canyon with no way out. So I showed wisdom (hard to believe, I know) and turned back.

“You don’t really get an idea of how steep this was from the pictures. But steep enough (and smooth enough) that I didn’t think I could climb back up.”

Oh, there’s much more, but perhaps this small selection of adventure from just the last year will be enough for now. In May Philip was hired by US Chess to be the official photographer at the Elementary National Championships in Columbus, Ohio. As well as his regular design job at Harland Clarke, the check printing company, he often worked as a photographer on weekends and other breaks. He shot mud runs, weddings, chess tournaments, school sporting events... several years ago he was hired to do publicity portraits for a roller derby team. One of the women insisted he take a picture of her nude, wearing only roller skates.

Philip has been part of the Northwest Chess scene for over forty years, as player, photographer, and prolific editor of the magazine. His first stint as editor started in 1990, following my own first series in 1989-90. He worked with me at International Chess Enterprises for several years in the 1990s as well.

A sounding board, a chat partner, a non-judgmental ear. Hard, hard indeed to lose a friend.

2022 Oregon Junior Closed

Wilson Gibbins

The 2022 edition of the Oregon Junior Closed, held December 9-11, 2022, was a mix of seven returning players joined by five new players. 2021 Challengers section winner Jaden Marx and 2022 Oregon High School champion Calvin Chang moved up from last year's Challengers section to this year's Championship section. With last year's co-champion Roshen Nair joined by Oregon Junior Closed Championship veterans Austin Tang and Ishaan Kodarapu, the only new player in the Championship section was Eric Erard. Yet his lack of experience in the Junior Closed didn't hold him back. He tied for first with now two-time champion Roshen by winning his final four games after losing his head-to-head game against Roshen in round one. Ademidun Adebolu started as the fifth seed in the Challenger's section, but his steady play and tactical accuracy resulted in three wins, two draws, and a clear first place.

In my humble opinion, the road from 1800 to 2200 goes through the Sicilian Defense. This is clearly an oversimplification, but as George Box put it, "All models are wrong but some are useful." It was a useful model for this year's tournament, as Roshen Nair navigated through four open Sicilians in five games (three as black, one as white) to secure his co-championship. Ademidun Adebolu used the Sicilian Defense to score two of his three wins. Overall, 13 of the 30 games were Sicilians. But Eric Erard, the other co-champion, ignored the Sicilian main road and took the road less taken, with two Polish Openings (1.b4), one St. George Defense (1.e4 e6 2.d4 a6 3.Bd3 b5) and one Borg Defense (1.e4 g5), picking up from where Michael Basman (RIP) left off.

Thanks to Dave Murray for organizing this event and helping me with the tournament director responsibilities. Thanks for the Portland Chess Club for allowing us to use their facility. Thanks to the players and parents for making this an event I look forward to every year. And finally, my apologies to Calvin Chang for publishing two of his losses. He plays solid moves and defends stubbornly, making wins against him all the more impressive.

[Wilson Gibbins]

The importance of this first round game was not obvious going in. Roshen is the defending co-champion, and this is Eric's first year in the closed. Roshen was played 1.c4 and 1.Nf3 last year, but switched to 1.e4 in 2022. Eric plays the French, a relatively conventional opening for him, as mentioned above. The players conspire to make the game as tactical as any Sicilian.

1.e4 e6 2.d4 d5 3.Nc3 Nf6 4.e5 Nfd7 5.f4 c5 6.Nf3 Nc6 7.Be3 cxd4 8.Nxd4 Be7

Eric's developing move looks normal, but it not that popular. It should not be confused with 7...Be7, which appears in a few of my French repertoire books.

9.Qd2 Nc5 10.Be2 0-0 11.0-0-0 Qe8

I like the look of this move, but Stockfish is not impressed. 11...Bd7 with a normal White advantage over the French that I can never find a way to exploit.

12.h4 f6 13.exf6 Bxf6 14.Bf3 Qe7

The tricky 14...Na4 tries to make something from the 11...Qe8 move 15.Nxa4? (15.Nce2 retains White's advantage) 15...Nxd4 16.Bxd4 Qxa4=.

15.h5 Bd7? 16.h6?±

The engine notices an even better move: 16.Nf5! exf5 17.Qxd5+ Be6 18.Qxc5+-. The French appears solid, but this line is full of tactical tricks.

1.e4 c5 2.Nf3 g6 3.d4 cxd4 4.Nxd4 Bg7 5.c3

It is logical to blunt the force of Black's dragon bishop, but this move is not forceful enough. If White is hesitant in a Sicilian, Black will take over. 5.c4 is the dreaded Maróczy Bind which nobody seems to dread anymore. 5.Nc3 Nc6 6.Be3 is another popular line, trying to reach a Yugoslav attack against the Dragon without falling for some tactical trick along the way.

Normally young players are discouraged from bringing their queen out too early, the notable exception being Vinnie's advice to Max Pomeranc in the final scene of Searching for Bobby Fischer. But Ademidun has judged that Black's queen is safe in the middle of a full board of pieces.

Qa5 Nbx d5 15.Bf2 has been played successfully a few times in 2022, and the engine thinks White is fine in spite of the missing pawn.) 14...Qxb6 is rather even.

12...Be7 13.Rg1 h4 14.f4 Qc7 15.a3 Nb6 16.f5?!

This tempting move gives Black a slight advantage. 16.Bxb6 Qxb6 17.Bd3=

16...Bd7!?

Roshen loses a little time to retain this important bishop. It defends the pawn on b5, making the advance of Black's queenside pawns easier. And it keeps a piece that can fight for the important d5 square. My automatic choice would be 16...Bc4, but White has equality after 17.Na5.

The move 16...Bxb3? is a positional mistake. Sure, it saves time and leaves Black with a center-pawn majority, but after 17.cxb3: 1) The cluster of pawns on the a- and b-files keeps White's king safe; 2) White can now contest the c-file which is normally a source of Black's counterplay; and 3) White can always prevent Black's d6-d6 break by taking the knight on b6 and playing a knight to d5.

17.Bxb6?

Position after 17.Bxb6

Stops the d6-d5 break, but with both Black's queen and bishop defending the b-pawn, Black's queenside pawns will roll forward.

17...Qxb6 18.Bd3 a5! 19.Na2 Bd8 20.g4 hxg3 21.Rxg3 Kf8! 22.Rdg1 Rh7!

It looks like White's major pieces are about to crash through on the kingside, but Black has sufficient defensive resources to hold the line.

23.Nbc1 Bc6 24.Qg2 Nh5! 25.Rg4 Nf4 26.Qf1 Bf6 27.Ne2 Nxe2?

Black is still better after this move, but Black can leave the knight on f4. If White plays Ne2xf4, ...exf4 will open a diagonal for Black's bishop on f6 towards White's king. 27...b4 28.axb4 axb4 29.Nxf4?! exf4 30.Qxf4 b3! opens more lines towards White's king: 31.Qxd6+ Be7 32.Qh2 bxa2+ 33.Ka1 Bf6 34.Qd6+ Ke8 (34...Kg8?? 35.Qxf6+-) 35.e5. And while the position might look a little sketchy for Black with his king caught in the center, 35...Be7 36.Qd4 Bc5 gives Black an overwhelming material advantage.

28.Bxe2. Ke7

28...b4 29.axb4 axb4 30.Bc4 Qd4 31.Qd3 Qxd3 32.Bxd3 Rb8.

29.R1g3! =

Position after 29.R1g3

Calvin has fought his way back into the game.

29...Rb8 30.Rb3 Rhh8 31.Qd1 Rb7 32.Rgg3 Rhh8 33.Bxb5?!

Simplifying into a slightly better endgame for Black. Just the kind of position Roshen plays well. 33.Nc3 is still equal.

33...Bxb5 34.a4 Qd4 35.Qxd4 exd4
 36.axb5 Rxb5 37.Rxb5 Rxb5 38.Rb3?!
 38.Nc1
 38...Rxb3 39.cxb3

Position after 39.cxb3

Both sides have many weak pawns. Whose pawns are weaker?

39...d5!

Roshen liquidates one of his weak pawns while making White's pawn on f5 weaker, activating his king in the process.

40.exd5 Kd6 41.b4 a4 42.Kc2 Kxd5 43.Kd3 Bg5 44.b5

This is the best try, pushing this passed pawn, but it is insufficient to hold the game.

44...Kc5 45.b6 Kxb6 46.Kxd4 Bf6+! 47.Kd5 Bxb2

The material is reduced, White is only one pawn down, but the game cannot be saved.

48.h4 Kb5 49.h5 a3 50.Kd6 Kc4 51.Ke7 Kb3 52.f6 Bxf6+ 53.Kxf7 Kxa2 54.Kg6 Kb1 55.Kf7 a2 56.Kg6 a1Q 57.Kh7 Qe5 58.Kg6 Qg5+ 59.Kh7 Qxh5+

1.e4 c5 2.Nc3 g6 3.Nge2

The Chameleon Sicilian. Maybe it will be an open Sicilian, maybe a closed. Time will tell.

3...Bg7 4.g3 Nc6 5.Bg2 d6 6.0-0 Nf6 7.d4

An open Dragon Sicilian, just as if White had played 2.Nf3 and 3.d4. The Chameleon Sicilian is a problem for Sicilian players who have incompatible repertoires in the open and closed variations—in particular, players who fianchetto their king's bishop in closed lines but do not play the Dragon. But Ademidun seems pretty comfortable in these Dragon positions—see his game from round one against Pace Lykins.

7...cxd4 8.Nxd4 Nxd4 9.Qxd4 0-0 10.h3 Be6 11.Qd1 Qd7 12.Kh2 Rfd8 13.f4 d5?!

Sicilian defenders should always be looking for this pawn break in the center, but in this case it gives White a lot of space on the kingside.

14.e5 Ne8 15.Qd4

Blockading Black's d-pawn. Normally the queen is a poor blockader, but here it is hard to drive it off d4. Ademidun tries to find a way.

15...Nd6!?

A tricky move, exploiting the pin on the d-pawn to free his knight.

16.g4

Stopping the knight from reaching the active f5 square, but it was OK to allow it. 16.Rd1 Nf5 17.Qf2 d4 18.g4

16...Rac8 17.Bxd5?!

White's open kingside and undeveloped queenside make this pawn grab a risky proposition. 17.Qf2 and the greedy 17.Qxa7!? are also playable.

17...Nb5!

17...Ne8! also works.

18.Nxb5 Qxb5

Black keeps his advantage with the in-between move 18...Rxc2+ if he can calculate as far as 19.Bg2 Bd5 20.Rf2 Rxf2 21.Qxf2 Bxg2. Material is even, but Black is better.

19.c4 Rxd5!?

Most black queen retreats are also equal, but this move is the most challenging to meet.

Position after 19...Rxd5

20.cxd5?

The cold-blooded 20.Qxd5! is the only move that retains equality: 20...Bxd5 21.cxb5 Rc2+ 22.Kg3 Rg2+ gives Black sufficient play for his material deficit.

20...Qxf1

And Black wins. Eternal tactical vigilance is the price of playing the open Sicilian, either as White or Black.

Roshen had a quick draw in round five, giving Eric the opportunity to catch him if he can win on demand with Black in the last round.

1.e4 e6

Another French for Eric, repeating his first-round opening against Roshen?

2.d4 a6!?

Nope, Eric has three straight wins with non-conventional openings—two Polish as White, one Borg (1.e4 g5) as Black. Why stop now?

3.Bd3 b5 4.c3 c5 5.Be3 c4 6.Bc2 Bb7 7.Nd2 Nf6 8.f3 Be7 9.Ne2 d6 10.0-0 Nbd7 11.Qe1 Qc7 12.Qg3

White has played sensibly and has the edge. But this is the kind of anti-classical position that Eric thrives on.

12...Rg8 13.f4

Position after 13.f4

Preparing to push pawns and open the center, where it appears Black's king will reside, as surely Black will not castle behind the advanced queenside pawns. 13.f4 restrains Black's kingside pawn advances.

But if you can predict Black's next move, you might start to snipe away at the queenside. After 13.b3, 13.a4 g5!? White is better, but it is unnerving to see pawns advance towards one's king.

13...0-0-0!?

Risky moves get labeled !? if they succeed, ?! if they fail.

14.b3 cxb3 15.axb3 h5 16.c4 b4

Keeping lines as closed as possible on the queenside, at the cost of giving White an impressive pawn center.

17.Ra4 Rdf8

Black can start his plan immediately with 17...Ng4 18.Rxb4 g5, making a mess while holding White's advantage to a minimum: 19.fxg5 Nxe3 20.Qxe3 Bxg5 21.Qc3.

18.Bd3 Ng4 19.Rc1 g5 20.f5 Nxe3

20...exf5 21.exf5 Re8 22.Rxb4 Nxe3 23.c5 (23.Qxe3? g4) 23...dxc5 24.Qxe3

21.Qxe3 g4

Position after 21...g4

22.Nf4

This knight move isn't wrong, but it leaves the rook on c1 undefended, so the attempts to open the position with the c4-c5 move will be less threatening. 22.c5 Bg5 23.Qxg5! Rxg5 24.cxd6 Qxc1+ 25.Nxc1 creates a messy position that Stockfish claims is much better for White.

22...Bg5 23.Qf2?

This queen move to unpin the knight gets White into trouble.

23...e5

23...h4?

24.dxe5?

Not sure anyone would play 24.c5 with the rook on c1 undefended, but Stockfish claims equality based on some long lines.

24...dxe5?

The natural recapture is not best. 24...Qc5! 25.Qxc5+ (25.Nd5 Nxe5 26.Bb1 Bxd2) 25...Nxc5 26.g3 Nxa4 27.bxa4 dxe5; 24...Nc5 25.Bb1 Bxf4 26.Qxf4 dxe5.

25.c5!

Calvin finds his best plan—crack open the queenside at any cost.

25...Bxf4?

25...g3! 26.hxg3 exf4 accelerates the process of breaking open White's kingside.

26.c6!±

The tide has turned in Calvin's favor.

26...Kd8

Position after 26...Kd8

27.Rc2=

27.g3! keeps White's kingside closed for longer. The ...h5-h4 pawn break is slower than the ...g4-g3 pawn break.

27...Bxc6 28.Rxa6 g3!= 29.Qe2?

29.hxg3 Bxg3 30.Qe3 Bf4 31.Qf2 Bg3= (31...Nb8? 32.Ra7)

29...gxh2+

Position after 29...gxh2+

It has been a tense, back-and-forth game until now, but Black keeps the win in hand the rest of the game, despite his open king. White can't bring quite enough firepower to the attack, and the pawn on h2 is a monster.

30.Kh1 Nb8 31.Bb5 Bxb5 32.Qxb5 Nxa6 33.Rxc7 Nxc7 34.Qxb4 Re8 35.Nc4 Rxc2 36.Kxc2 Rg8+ 37.Kf2 h1Q 38.Qb8+ Ke7 39.Qxc8 Ne8 40.f6+ Nxf6 41.Qb8 Nxe4+ 42.Ke2 Qb1 43.Qb7+ Kf6 44.Qc6+ Kg7 45.Kf3 Qd3+ 46.Kg2 Qg3+ 47.Kf1 Qf2#

Robert “Bob” Bishop

1953–2022

David and Ellen Baumann

Longtime chess coach, volunteer, and friend Robert (Bob) Bishop passed away suddenly on Christmas morning, December 25th, 2022. Bob was born on September 30, 1953.

Bob taught math and led chess clubs at Cynthia Mann Elementary in Boise, and later at North Star Charter School in Eagle. After he retired from teaching, he coached multiple chess clubs in the Boise area. Bob helped with ICA (Idaho Chess Association) and WISCL (Western Idaho Scholastic Chess League) scholastic chess tournaments, often in the role of emcee. Students still recall the Chess Extravaganza that Bob and former Girl’s State champ Erica Barkell held in 2016.

In addition to teaching and chess, Bob was a motivational speaker and magician—known internationally as “Mr. X—America’s Math Magician.” He touched so many lives by mentoring and educating others. His infectious enthusiasm will be missed by both students and adults.

Chess, Art And The Power Of Community

By Gabriela Osias

Chess found me at a pivotal moment in my life. I was nearing the end of a decade devoted to a career in architecture. As a naturally curious and creative person, the passion and dedication to the profession came easily. I followed the ascribed path, through long hours and high stress, without much question. But during that last year at the firm in 2021, in the throes of a pandemic, while attempting to manage my first project, I could feel my creativity and focus slipping. I was burning out.

A few months later, I made a new friend, Gideon. He told me about a chess club that met at bars during the week. Never having had much of a night life, it sparked my curiosity and I decided to stop by after work. Besides a basic understanding of the moves (my dad introduced my brother and me as kids), I had no sense of tactics or strategy—but was eager to try something new, and, perhaps subconsciously, find an escape.

I remember walking into the bar and the organizer, Finn, greeted me right off the bat, as if he was expecting me. I thought to myself, cool, ice broken—that was easy. A few minutes later another guy walked in, it was his first time too—his name was Dustin and we started playing.

After several months of regular play, I began to notice the inherent creativity of the game. This ever-changing compositional grid—informed by a continuous stream of input and output, action and reaction—mirroring the quiet dialogue between painter and canvas or the energy amongst musicians improvising. A creative process of intuition and skill until the final piece evolves into something else entirely, something neither player could have foreseen—to me, that is the art of chess.

This discovery, as well as befriending other creatives at the club, like Caitlin (graphic designer) and Karli (musician/UX designer), helped reinforce chess as a creative outlet. Seeing their artistic contributions through flyers, T-shirts, and the website, inspired me to offer my own skills to the collective. My first project was an LED installation I built at the woodshop I now work for. Creating drawings, programming the CNC, testing materials and assembly methods—took me back to my days of architecture studio. This glowing pawn, now stationed at Black Cat Bar, serves as an inviting beacon for passers-by. And recently, I've way to connect with each other, using it as a tool for philanthropy—a way to support each other—just made sense.

Fast forward a year later and these folks (plus many others) are now close friends of mine. They've coached me, laughed with me, and always encouraged me. Each time I walk into the club I'm met with the same warmth and kindness as I was that first time. That sense of belonging and knowing that there are people rooting for you is invaluable and has allowed me to find my creative spirit again. And I never could have guessed that joining a chess club would help me get here.

The crux of our personal struggles is that they often center around ourselves. But as I emerge from the low and find my footing, I can feel my perspective expand. The realities of others can now come into view. My experience of sadness, of feeling lost, of failure—is now less focused on me, but rather, the shared human experience of it all. And while I cannot claim to be beyond those feelings, they sit with me differently. That difference might be imperceptible to most, but it's been a significant shift for me—a sort of 'redistribution' of the weight of the world.

These gifts of creativity, friendship, and personal growth through chess have inspired me to try to share it with those who need it the most. Through this initiative, I hope to offer something beyond the basic necessities, but equally important to the mind and spirit. Along with donating chess equipment, my friends and I hosted our first volunteer event at a shelter in Shoreline to help them establish their own chess club.

None of us can brave the elements of life on our own—especially those who have been marginalized by society or circumstance. I am hopeful that by incorporating chess into our social services, it will encourage meaningful connections and build self-confidence so that we may all find our center again.

Community is our port in the storm. Chess club is my community.

been working on a series of mixed media posters to celebrate each club location.

Once I started selling art, the idea to fundraise with it developed in sync with my restored motivation. I started viewing this gift of inspiration as an opportunity to pay it forward. Since art at its core is a

2022 Washington Class Championships

Josh Sinanan

The 2022 Washington Class Championships were held over Thanksgiving weekend November 25-27 at the Redmond Marriott. Located in the heart of Redmond Town Center, the Redmond Marriott is a favorite venue for many due to its convenient proximity to many shops and restaurants, as well as free parking! Chess players from throughout North America including parts of Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Utah, and British Columbia were represented in the three-day chess extravaganza. The event was hosted by the Washington Chess Federation, directed by Senior TD Fred Kleist, and organized by WCF President Josh Sinanan. WCF Treasurer Robert Allen, Tournament Coordinator Valentin Razmov, Member-at-Large Ani Barua, and Washington Class Photographer Meiling Cheng assisted in running the event. Over 150 players participated in the three-day chess festival which spanned the holiday weekend and paid out a prize fund of $11,000. The Thanksgiving Scholastic, directed by Coach Lane Van Weerdhuizen, attracted 127 juniors on Black Friday November 25! Numerous fun side events including the Carol Kleist Memorial Adult Swiss, Puzzle Solving Championship, Workshop for Girls and Women, Chess Art Exhibition, Magic Show, Chess960 (Fischer Random) Championship, G/45 Championship, and “Knight Time” Blitz rounded out the immersive chess experience!

In the modest ten-player Master section, it was the Experts who took charge and tied for first place with a score of four points apiece: David Zhou (1883-2000 (US Chess) – 4.0) of Seattle, Pranav K. Anoop (2079-2103 – 4.0) of Bellevue, Ananth Gottumukkala (1991-2018 – 4.0) of Sammamish, and Ryan Min (2010-2041 – 4.0) of Bellevue. Min began the tournament red-hot with an undefeated four points from five games and was the clear leader heading into the final round, where he was matched against the strong master Kyle Haining. A clutch win by Haining opened the door for Zhou, Anoop, and Gottumukkala to catch him and tie for first place. To determine the seed into the Championship section of the 2023 Washington State Championship, a two-game playoff was held between Zhou and Anoop, since Min and Gottumukkala had already qualified by winning the Junior Closed and Washington Open, respectively. CM Kyle Haining (2288-2287 – 3.0) of Lake Forest Park, a recent UW Computer Science grad who now works in Seattle, captured the second U2300 prize with three points, despite taking two half-point byes and a zero-point bye in the fifth round!

James Wei (1858-1937 – 5.0), a high school student from Boise, topped the 23-player Expert section with an undefeated five-point score! Along his way to the title, Wei allowed only two draws against Alex Gross (1842) and Yiding Lu (1973). Last year’s Washington K-5 Rockefeller Qualifier Yiding Lu (1973-1997 – 4.5) of Bellevue finished in second place, recovering well from a second-round loss to Anand Gupta, rattling off three-and-a-half points from his final four games. As the highest-finishing Washington resident in the Expert section, Yiding earns the seed into the 2023 WA State Championship: Premier section. A duo of adult players tied for third/first U2100 honors half-a-point back: Derek Edwards (2065-2068 – 4.0) of Seattle and Leonid Gavrysh (1968-1979 – 4.0) of Brier. Four gentlemen rounded out the Expert prize winners and shared the second U2100 prize with 3.5 points each: Paul Bartron (2055-2053 – 3.5) of Tacoma, Colin Diamond (1978-1992 – 3.5) of Seattle, Harrison Toppen-Ryan (1948-1945 – 3.5) of Kirkland, and Bertrand Wan (1923-1948 – 3.5) of Bellevue.

In the 23-player Class A section, Brent Baxter (1902-1931 – 5.5)

of Olympia won first place with a dominating score, allowing only a single draw against Arnold Yang (1611) in the final round! For his victory, Brent is seeded into the Invitational section of the 2023 Washington State Championship. Westview High School junior Arnold Yang (1611-1716 – 4.5) of Portland finished in second place a full point back. Two chess kings, Valentin Razmov (1786-1801 – 4.0) of Seattle and Gil Wolff (1844-1847 – 4.0) of Kirkland, shared third/first U1900 honors with four points each. A sextuplet of up-and-coming Washington princes split the second U1900 prize to help cover their gas money: Alexander Gross (1858-1842 – 3.5) of Seattle, Edward Cheng (1679-1707 – 3.5) of Seattle, Edward Li (1696-1699 – 3.5) of Redmond, Jamie Zhu (1663-1669 – 3.5) of Sammamish, Derek Heath (1718-1730 – 3.5) of Camas, and Daniel Wang (1568-1653 – 3.5) of Mercer Island.

In a closely contested 29-player Class B section, the tournament’s largest, three players tied for first: Travis Olson (1743-1728 – 4.5) of Mukilteo, Daniel Wilke (1633-1641 – 4.5) of Sammamish, and Michael Shapiro (1541-1566 – 4.5) of Sammamish. Amazingly enough, none of the first-place finishers faced each other over the course of the tournament, likely due to the abundance of draws and half-point-byes in the section. A playoff between Wilke and Shapiro has yet to be held to determine the seed into the Challenger’s section of the 2023 Washington State Championship. Travis Olson has already qualified by virtue of winning the earlier Washington Open event in 2022. A quintuplet of players finished tied for first/second U1700 a half-point back: Darsh Verma (1422-1456 – 4.0) of Bothell, Jeremy Jusak (1627-1609 – 4.0) of Anacortes, Aaron Ren (1450-1500 – 4.0) of Bellevue, Lucas Liu (1308-1422 – 4.0) of Bellevue, and Vineesh Nallabothula (1368-1479 – 4.0) of Redmond.

Three chess musketeers – David Hendricks (1500-1508 – 5.0) of Sammamish, Arlo Breslauer (1183-1303 – 5.0) of Seattle, and Ramesh Kumar (1364-1378 – 5.0) of Snoqualmie – topped the 25-player Class C section. Kumar bounced back well from his second-round loss to youngster Evan Cen and won his final four games to keep pace with Hendricks and Breslauer, who drew against each other in the final round. Miranda Meng (1000-1136 – 4.0) of Bellevue earned first U1500 honors a full point back, winning her final three games in a row! Eighth grader Devansh Sharma (1023-1140 – 3.5) of Redmond won the second place U1500 prize by virtue of being the only player to score three-and-a-half points in his section. Two chess queens – Selina Cheng (1176-1159 – 3.0) of Seattle and Haituka Anandkumar (1177-1153 – 3.0) of Redmond – shared the Best Female Players prize.

In the 23-player Class D section, seventh-grader Abhinav Mishra (1229-1346 – 5.5) emerged victorious with an impressive five-and-a-half points from six games. Along the way, Abhinav, who some say is related to GM Abhimanyu Mishra, conceded only a single draw to second place finisher Balbir Singh (1312) in the third round. Mishra's decisive approach paid off, as the solid Balbir Singh (1312-1312 – 4.5) of Sea-Tac also drew against Zoe Xu (753) and Paul Buchignani (1382). A duo of chess kings, Vladimir Fedorov (923-1070 – 4.0) of Sammamish and Laurion Burchall (1229-1216 – 4.0) of Seattle, split the third place prize with four points apiece. Seattle chess enthusiast Stephen Weller (1138-1129 – 4.0) earned first U1300 honors also with four points. Two seventh-grade chess studs – Zerui Li (unrated-1092 – 3.5) of Bothell and William Cummins (1027-1044 – 3.5) of Snoqualmie – shared the second U1300 Prize to round out the Class D prize winners.

The 18-player Class E section featured an eclectic mix of up-and-coming juniors and adult chess players who have recently discovered chess these past few years during the pandemic. Brier chess queen Iryna Gavrysh (unrated-1321 – 5.5), dominated the section with an undefeated five-and-a-half points from six games and claimed the first Unrated Prize for her efforts. She conceded only a single draw to Oregonian Phil Long (1222) in the third round on her way to the title. Two underrated chess kings, Phil Long (1222-1231 – 5.0) of Portland and Adam Hard (942-988 – 5.0) of Snohomish, did not find things difficult as they each cruised to within a half-point of Gavrysh. Youngsters Tristan Yeung (unrated-935 – 3.5) of Bellevue and Nehanth Kakani (101-324 – 3.5) of Bellevue shared third/first U1000 honors with three-and-a-half points apiece. Sammamish chess wizards William Ma (705-628 – 3.0) and Riddhima Chauhan (204-328 – 3.0) shared second U1000/first U800 honors a half-point back. William could have finished even higher if not for an unfortunate incident in the fifth round. During his game against Shrey Bahl (unrated), William had forced mate in two with a back-rank checkmate. While Shrey was thinking through his options, William became impatient, awarded himself the win on the pairings sheet while the game was still going, and left the playing hall! Shrey, facing the forced mate, eventually made his move after William had left and then claimed the win due to his opponent's extended absence from the board! Niharika Vutukuri (459-499 – 3.0) of Redmond won the Best Female Prize with a score of three points.

In addition to the regular overall and class prizes, this year's event featured a Mixed Doubles Competition in which the top three male-female two-player teams combined among all sections qualified for a prize. A total of nine mixed double teams were formed; some with siblings/spouses teaming up, and others with friends joining forces! The mixed doubles team of Leonid and Iryna Gavrysh, a husband-and-wife team from Brier, won the first-place prize with a combined score of 9.5 points. Team MengRen consisting of Miranda Meng and Aaron Ren, both from Bellevue, claimed second-place honors with eight points. Team AnandZhou, comprised of Haituka Anandkumar from Redmond and David Zhou from Seattle, finished in third place with seven points. Best annotated game prizes are still being judged and will be announced in a future issue of Northwest Chess.

Congratulations to the winners!

Carol Kleist Memorial Adult Swiss

The Carol Kleist Memorial Adult Swiss took place November 25-27 alongside the main tournament to honor the late Carol Kleist, who passed away last spring. The 13-player adult-only (18+) six-round Swiss featured a slightly faster time control of G/90;+30, which offered a nice alternative for those adults looking to spend less time at the board and wishing to avoid playing those pesky underrated kids! The event was run under the supervision of Senior TD Fred Kleist, Carol's husband, and was sponsored by the Seattle Chess Club with a generous prize fund of $1000 guaranteed by SCC board member and chess benefactor Henry Yan. Federal Way chess aficionado H.G. Pitre opted to "simul" the Carol Kleist Memorial Adult Swiss and the 3-day Class A section of the main tournament, which made for some challenging decisions in the rounds in which he was playing two games simultaneously! Paul Leblanc (1837-1851, 5.0) of Victoria, B.C. emerged victorious with an impressive five wins from six games and won the tournament with a round to spare! His only loss came at the hands of tournament sponsor Henry Yan (1732) in the final round. Rich LaVoice (1858-1861, 4.5) of Kirkland finished in second place a half-point back. Two Seattle Chess Club board members, Henry Yan (1732-1726, 4.0) of Bellevue and Ralph Anthony (1583-1564, 4.0) of Mukilteo tied for =third/U2000 honors with four points each. Canadian chess king Don Hack (1347-1409, 3.5), who recently relocated from Surrey to Ladysmith, captured first Place U1700 plus the upset prize for his second round knockout win over Anthony. Newcomer Michael Rodney (unrated-1118, 3.0) from Redmond earned the Unrated Prize with an impressive three points. Sitka chess wise guy Henry Louie (1313-1300, 2.5), now residing in Mineral, a former logging camp and mining town located near the Pierce/Lewis County line, and Canadian newcomer Paul MacDonell (unrated-101, 2.5) shared the U1400 prize with two-and-a-half points apiece. The results are presented in pink, since it was Carol's favorite color.

Thanksgiving Scholastic

The Thanksgiving Scholastic chess tournament was held on Black Friday, November 25, at the Redmond Marriott. A total of 127 scholastic chess players in grades K-12 participated from throughout Washington State, including the cities of Lynnwood, Redmond, Bellevue, Sammamish, Mill Creek, Seattle, Bremerton, Duvall, Normandy Park, Issaquah, Renton, Kirkland, Shoreline, Bothell, Medina, Auburn, Clyde Hill, Kent, Woodinville, Olympia, and Snohomish! The event was hosted by the Washington Chess Federation and directed by chess tournament director extraordinaire Coach

Lane Van Weerdhuizen with assistance from Advait + Anvith Vijayakumar, their father Vijay Sankaran, and parent volunteer Jeff Weng. Amazing photographs were taken throughout the day by Meiling Cheng. Washington Class Chess Workshop For Women And Girls

The third Chess Workshop for Girls and Women, led by WCF Director of Women's and Girls' Chess, WFM Chouchan Airapetian, took place on Friday evening from 6:00-8:00 PM in the studio A space. A solid turnout of about a ten girls and women attended the workshop and enjoyed some complimentary Pagliacci pizza and beverages courtesy of WCF while discussing the topic of: "How to develop and cultivate women's and girls' chess". Some fun informal blitz and bughouse games broke out to conclude the enchanting evening.

Special Appearance By Magician Rich Waters

On Friday afternoon from 12:00-2:00 PM, a group of excited kids and adults gathered nearby the Thanksgiving Scholastic playing room to witness a tricky and exciting magic show!

Local Magician Rich Waters performed some close-up magic tricks and balloon twisting, much to the amazement of the mesmerized audience! In fact, the exhibition caused such a commotion that the entire shebang had to be moved further down the hall to not disturb the three-day players! Parents and kids alike thoroughly enjoyed Magic Rich's performance, which provided a few hours of entertainment for several antsy youngsters.

Special thanks to chess wonder woman Karen Schmidt for connecting WCF with Magic Rich, with whom she regularly meets to play chess at the new Detective Cookie Chess Park in Seattle.

Washington Class Chess960 (Fischer Random) Championship

The Washington Class Chess960 (Fischer Random) Championship took place on Saturday, November 26 at 4:00 PM between rounds three and four of the three-day schedule. Seven intrepid chess warriors honored the legacy of Bobby Fischer as they scrambled up the back-rank pieces and played Chess960 from a different starting position each round! Pieces were drawn at random by the players and spectators out of a bag, which produced some truly unorthodox starting positions including: RQNBBKRN (Pos #601), RKNRNBBQ (Pos #862), BBNNQRKR (Pos #32), and RQBBKRNN (Pos #885). Seattle Fischer-Random chess enthusiast Valentin Razmov (1883, 3.5) emerged victorious with three-and-a-half points from four games, conceding only a single draw to second place finisher Edward Cheng (1829, 3.0), also of Seattle, in the third round. Two players tied for third/U2000 a with two points apiece: Boas Lee (1687, 2.0) of Shoreline and Gabriel Razmov (1590, 2.0) of Seattle. Young Selina Cheng (1456, 1.0) of Seattle earned the U1700 prize with one point. Olivier Mercier (1030, 0.0) of Redmond captured the U1400 prize by playing hard in each and every game regardless of the result, just like Bobby Fischer did.

Chess-inspired Artwork On Display

Local artist and chess player Gabriela Osias was on-site on Saturday from 12:00-4:00 PM to display some of her chess-inspired artwork! Players and parents had a chance to check out some samples on her Instagram (https://www.instagram.com/gosi_creates/). Gabriela's work is notable for its novelty and fine craftsmanship and makes a wonderful gift for any chess enthusiast! All proceeds from her art sales go towards purchasing chess sets and donating them to homeless shelters.

Washington Class G/45 Championship

The Washington Class G/45 Championship, a four-round Swiss in one nine-player section, took place on Sunday, November 27 in the afternoon starting at 1:30 PM. Players ranging in rating from Class E to Master competed over the course of the afternoon, which made for some quite imbalanced and eventful struggles! With only five players officially registered for the tournament, a different "house player" came in each round to even out the numbers and ensure that everyone had a game. Dominic Colombo (1936-1941 – 3.5) of Gig Harbor topped the standings with an undefeated three-and-a-half points, conceding only a single draw in the third round to second place finisher Robin Tu (1700-1718 – 2.0) of Seattle. Max McCall (1275-1301 – 1.5) of Seattle finished in third place with one-and-a-half points, thanks in large part to a clutch draw with Tu in the second round. Gig Harbor chess veteran Rogelio Zaragoza (1894-1838 – 1.0), who signed up for the tournament on a whim while in the area holiday shopping with his wife, earned first U2000 honors with one point. Seattle Chess Club webmaster Austin Cluff (1534-1549 – 1.0) won the U1700 prize with one point, taking one step closer to his goal of becoming a master of chess!

Washington Class "Knight-Time" Blitz

The 25-player Washington Class "Knight-Time" Blitz tournament, a popular annual side event at large WCF tournaments, got off to a blistering start on Sunday evening at 8:30 PM in Salon 3 next to the main playing hall under the direction of WCF President Josh Sinanan. The seven-round, single Swiss blitz tournament featured a time control of G/5; +2 and was US Chess Blitz rated. National Master Daniel He (2367-2357 – 6.0) of Redmond came out of retirement and crushed the field with an impressive six points from seven games, allowing only two draws against young stars Vidip Kona (1875) and Vihaan Jammalamadaka (1860) in rounds three and six, respectively.

Four players tied for second/third/U2000 honors a full point back: Bryan Leano (2097-2089 – 5.0) of Draper (UT), Vidip Kona (1875-1879 – 5.0) of Redmond, Vihaan Jammalamadaka (1860-1888 – 5.0) of Redmond, and Valentin Razmov (1697-1713 – 5.0) of Seattle. Speedy Seattle youngsters Gavin Shi (1245-1318 – 4.0) and Selina Cheng (1232-1265 – 4.0) split the U1700 prize with four points apiece. Two Washington chess kings shared U1400 honors with three-and-a-half points each: Stephen Shuman (1230-1230 – 3.5) of Seattle and Balbir Singh (1186-1195 – 3.5) of Sea-Tac. Vishal Suram (unrated-1046 – 3.0) of Bothell earned the Unrated prize with an impressive three points.

WA Class Championship (Masters)
Redmond, WA (R6), November 27, 2022
[David Zhou]

Going into the final round, I trailed the tournament leader by a full point and two other players by half a point each. In order to have any chance at placing, this was a must-win game. My opponent was a well-known local master with a history of strong results. He has decades of games in the database, so it was difficult to prepare in the few minutes before the round started. His Wikipedia page cited a classical win against Bobby Fischer in the 1955 US Junior Championship. Having recently visited Fischer's grave in Iceland, I was determined to avenge my chess hero.

1.d4 e6 2.c4 Nf6 3.g3 d5 4.Nf3 dxc4
5.Bg2 Nc6 6.Qa4 Bb4+ 7.Bd2 Bxd2+

Maintaining the tension with ...Nd5 makes more sense. After this bishop exchange, I will easily regain the pawn and retain a space advantage.

8.Nbxd2 0-0 9.Qxc4

Black has a space disadvantage and will find it hard to develop his light-squared bishop naturally. If he could break with ...e5 without allowing d5, he could solve both problems. It seems however that White has the resources to prevent this break.

9...Qe7

9...Qd5 10.Qc3 and ...e5 is no closer to happening while the queen is now exposed after a subsequent 0-0.

10.e4 e5

A surprising move. Black is accepting a long-term weakness on c7 and losing time with the knight while already behind in development. 10...Qb4 11.Qc3 Qxc3 12.bxc3 would allow White to bolster his center, but with the queens off, the space advantage is less dangerous for Black.

11.d5 Nb8

11...Na5 12.Qc3 b6 only helps White clamp down on c6 harder.

12.0-0 Ne8 13.Rac1?!

13.b4! move would save a full tempo over the game and prevent Black's natural development. 13...Nd6 is conveniently met by 14.Qc3 Re8 15.Rfc1 using the f1-rook since the play is on the queenside 15...Na6 16.a4 Black's position is already on the verge of collapse.

13...Na6

Now White will have to spend a tempo on a3 to execute the same plan, allowing Black to gain some coordination.

14.a3 Nd6 15.Qc3 Re8 16.b4 Bd7

Black has stopped b5 for now, but his pieces are still awkward and the c7-pawn requires constant attention.

17.Qb3!?

With the direct idea of forcing a4 and b5. 17.Nc4 also looked good as the d6-knight is Black's only good piece. If Black does not exchange on c4, Na5 will increase the queenside pressure. However, I didn't see any necessity to enter the complications after ...Bb5 when I already had a stable advantage. 17...Bb5? forcing complications is easily refuted by (17...Nxe4 18.Qxe5 leaves Black with many queenside weaknesses and poor pieces.) 18.Nfxe5 f6 19.Nxd6 Bxf1 20.Nxe8 Bxg2 21.Kxg2 White will save one knight with a clearly winning position. 21...fxe5 22.Nxc7 Rc8 23.d6!

17...c6

Black's position is very uncomfortable, and my opponent spent over 40 minutes on this move. 17...Bb5 Hoping to clamp down on the light squares only provides temporary relief. White will be able to regroup after 18.Rfe1 Qd7 preventing a4 19.Nb1!? Ba4 20.Qb2 f6 21.Nc3 Rac8 22.Bf1 intending b5; Black is already lost.

18.Rfe1 Nc7 19.a4 a6

19...a5 20.b5 utilizes the pin against the c7-knight.

20.Qe3?

Surprisingly, this is the move that throws the advantage away. Black will be able to bring a rook to c8, move the c7-knight and take on d5, challenging the only open file. 20.Rc5! is difficult for Black to meet. The simple threat is to take on c6 and e5. 20...Qf6 21.Qc2 This dual-purpose move exerts further pressure on the c-file while also protecting e4. The d2-knight will find a nice home on e3 via f1, which will also further discourage Black from taking on d5. 21...Rac8 22.Nf1 Na8 23.Ne3.

20...Rc8 21.Qb6 Nce8

Black has found a solid regrouping that has solved nearly all of his problems. I'll no longer be able to claim any edge after Black exchanges on d5, so I should already think of playing safely with a5 or dxc6.

22.Nb3?!

This move overlooks the hanging pawn on a4 as well as Black's counterplay based on pushing his e-pawn (following an exchange in the center).

22...cxd5

Only realized here a4 is loose.

23.exd5?

I should have spent more time on this move once I realized a4 was also threatened. It was time to admit I no longer had any edge and enter damage control mode. 23.Rxc8! Rxc8 24.exd5 e4 25.Nc5! would keep me in the game.

23...Rxc1! 24.Nxc1 f6?

24...e4! is very hard to meet. One of the main issues is that the pawn can never be captured due to the rook on e1 being undefended and the threat of ...f5 winning a pinned piece. 25.Nd2 Bxa4 Black has a clean pawn, and his pieces are coming to life. The formerly awkward knights hold the all the queenside weaknesses down while it is now White's knights that are passive.

25.a5 Qd8 26.Qe3

I was still hoping to play for an advantage here.

26...Qc7 27.Nd2?!

27.Nb3! aiming to plant the knight on c5 was correct, but I feared a queen invasion. 27...Qc4 28.Nc5 Bb5 29.Qd2 covers both hanging pawns.

27...Rc8 28.Bf1?

28.Ncb3 Qc3 29.Nc5 again would give White all the advantages of the previous variation.

28...Qc3

Position after 28...Qc3

29.Qxc3!

All other moves immediately lose. 29.Nd3? is what I intended from afar, but this loses simply to 29...Nf5 30.Qe2 Nd4 31.Qe3 Qxd2!

29...Rxc3 30.Ncb3!

Better late than never. Black has a slight edge in this endgame where he controls the only open file and the b4-pawn may eventually be a weakness. For now, the b3-knight shields the pawn from any Rc2-b2 ideas.

30...Kf7 31.Re3?

The position is already becoming tricky to play and this move only allows Black to invade further into White's camp.

31...Rxe3?

This exchange surprised me and was also a relief. Perhaps Black was happy to enter an equal minor piece endgame after defending for most of the game, but I was already on the back foot. 31...Rc2! 32.Bd3 Rb2 Black has conceded the c-file, but White has no use for it. The difference in activity between the two rooks is stark.

32.fxe3 f5 33.Nc5 Bc8 34.e4

With this move, I stop ...e4 and gain the e4-square if Black exchanges.

34...g6 35.Bh3 Kf6 36.Kf2 Nb5??

This immediately loses as my knight can suddenly infiltrate c4! 36...Kg5 37.Nf3+ Kf6 38.Ke3 f4+? 39.gxf4 exf4+ 40.Kxf4 Bxh3 41.e5+ Ke7 42.exd6+ Nxd6 43.Ng5

37.Nc4! Ned6 38.Nb6! Nc3 39.Nxc8?

Played with only a few minutes to make the time control, this move lets the win slip. 39.Ke1!!, sidestepping the check, is the only clearly winning one. Black has no way to improve his position, and we will take c8 and b7 next without fearing the knight capturing e4 with tempo.

39...Nxc8 40.Nxb7 Na7??

Inexplicable blunders often happen on the last moves before reaching time control and this is no exception. 40...Nxe4+ is obvious and strong, after which Black should draw. 41.Ke3 Ne7 42.Kd3 Nxd5 43.Kc4 Ne3+ 44.Kd3 Nd5=

Position after 40...Na7

41.d6??

Despite having gained the 30 extra minutes, I return the favor, again swinging the evaluation to equal. 41.exf5? Nxd5! (41...gxf5? 42.d6 Ke6 43.g4!) 42.Nc5! (42.fxg6? Kxg6 and Black hangs on.) 42...Nxb4 43.Nd7+ Ke7 44.Nxe5+- White is doing very well, but the win still needs to be proven in this position.

41...Nxe4+ 42.Ke3 Ke6 43.Nc5+!? Kxd6??

Thankfully in this line, I had correctly calculated out the win. 43...Nxc5! 44.bxc5 Nc6 45.Bf1 Kd5 46.Bxa6 Kxc5 47.d7 Kd6!= Only this move, which I had missed when I played d6, draws. (47...Kb4?? is the only move I had considered for Black, and this loses immediately to 48.Bb7)

44.Nxe4+ fxe4 45.Bf1!

White will win the a6-pawn for the b4-pawn. The subsequent ending would be drawn if Black's pawns weren't shattered (e.g. if the e4 pawn were on f5), but as it is, White has a simple won ending.

45...Nc6 46.Bxa6 Nxb4 47.Bb7 Nc2+ 48.Kxe4 Nd4 49.a6 Nb5

The knight's tour has stopped the pawn and kept the game going, but the result is a foregone conclusion. At this point, the game next to ours on board four had completed and Viktors and I were the last ones in the playing hall. Having been so engrossed in the complications leading up to the time control, I hadn't seen the results of the round five tournament leaders. I wouldn't find out until after my game whether I was playing with any chance of finishing tied first.

50.h3

The first step to converting is to gain access to the kingside with the king. To do this, I will need to provoke the h7 and g6 pawns to advance, but Bd5?? would lose to ...Nc3+.

50...Na7 51.Bd5 h6 52.Bf7 g5 53.Kf5 Nc6 54.Kg6 Ke7 55.Bd5 Na7 56.Kxh6 Kf6!?

Viktors finds a tricky idea, trying to lock my king on the edge of the board.

57.Be4 Nc8 58.Kh7

I intend simply to take the long way around!

58...Kf7 59.Bd5+ Kf6 60.g4 Na7 61.Kg8 e4

Hoping for activity with the king.

62.Bxe4 Ke5 63.Bf5 Kf4 64.Kg7 Kg3 65.Kg6 Kh4!?

Again playing the trickiest idea in a lost position. I could give up the pawn on h3 and still have a completely winning position, but keeping the pawn seemed most convincing to me.

66.Bd3 Nc6 67.Bf1 Na7 68.Kf6 Nc8 69.Ke6 Kg3 70.Kd7 Na7 71.Kc7

As it turned out, the stars aligned on the first two boards where I needed the tournament leader to lose and the two players trailing by half a point to draw. With this win, I finished in a four-way tie for first in the Washington Class Championship.

WA Class Championship (Class D) Redmond, WA (R1), November 26, 2022 [Paul Buchignani]

Scotch Opening. The game appeared to be basically even until move 20 when a miscalculation by White lost the exchange and ultimately sealed his fate. Instead of 20.exf6, the simple Qxd6 would have won a pawn and very possibly the game.

1.e4 e5 2.Nf3 Nc6 3.d4

White gambits a pawn—at least temporarily—for development.

Better was Bxe6.

12...Re8

I expected 12...Bf6 to harass my queen, but it would have led to worse than that for White as follows: 13.Qd3 Nc5 14.Qe2 Bxc3 15.bxc3 Qf6 16.Bh2 Qxc3 17.Bd5 Bxd5 18.exg5 which wins a pawn for Black.

13.a3

Another mistake. I was worried about 36...a5. White's position continues to deteriorate.

36...Rxc3

37.Bxd6 Rxb3

38.Ng3 Rh2+ 39.Kf3

Ke3 was best.

39...Rd2 40.Bb8 Rd3+ 41.Kg2 Rxb3 42.Bxa7 Nxa4

For a few seconds the desperate white knight eyes d5 and licks his chops...in futility of course.

58...Qd4

59.Kh4 Qd1 60.Ng2??

This blunder leads to a mate-in-two but I'll just blame it on having six seconds left on my clock.

60...Qh1+

White resigns. 0-1. The roots of this sorry ending for White can be traced back to Move #20.

1.d4 Nf6 2.Nc3

One of those opening lines that were considered "incorrect" years ago, and thus played only by a few, has regained popularity with recent successes (particularly at shorter time controls) of some of the best players in the world, including the current World Champion.

2...d5 3.Bf4 a6

Avoiding the possibility of Nc3–Nb5 by White at any moment soon. Another normal and popular response for Black here is 3...c5 4.e3 cxd4 5.exd4 a6. Note the delayed development of Black's queen-side knight, which aims to jump directly to c6, if possible. (5...Bg4)

4.e3 e6

An important decision for Black here is whether to keep the light-squared bishop outside or inside the pawn chain and thus to allow or deny its exchange for a white knight, as illustrated by this alternative line: 4...Bf5 5.Nf3 e6 6.Ne5 Nfd7 7.g4 Bg6 8.Nxg6 hxg6.

5.g4

Ambitious undertaking by White, made possible by the closing of the pawn chain by Black on the previous move.

5...c5

Another way to counter White's swift king-side action is: 5...Bb4 getting ready for Nf6–Ne4 in the right moment... 6.Nge2 b5 A typical Black pawn setup against the Jobava–London system.

6.g5 Nfd7 7.Nf3 Nc6 8.h4

These were all natural moves by both sides.

8...Nb6

Black decides to add the second knight to the queen-side action too, and thus uncrowded their central space, but this limits the mobility of some of the other pieces. Notice the difference to a more typical setup with: 8...b5 9.h5 Bb7 10.Bh3 b4 11.Ne2 Be7±

9.h5 Bd6

One of the ideas behind Black's previous move.

10.Bxd6

Sometimes it's okay for White to allow a trade on f4, so long as they can maintain good control over the central squares, e.g.: 10.Qd2 Bxf4 11.exf4 cxd4 12.Nxd4 Qc7 13.0-0 Bd7±

10...Qxd6 11.dxc5=

Releasing the central tension is a concession to Black. A more promising line for White would be: 11.h6 g6 12.Qd2 with a subsequent 0-0-0.

11...Qxc5 12.Nd4 e5?!

Succumbing to the appeal of gaining more central space quickly and opening the light-squared bishop too. But the price is the weakening of the d5–pawn. 12...Bd7 13.h6 g6 14.Nb3 Qe7 was a decent alternative where Black would be fine.; 12...Nc4? is an idea Black wisely rejected during the game, as White will trade off the light pieces and be left with stronger position due to Black's weakened dark-squares: 13.Nxc6 bxc6 (13...Nxb2? 14.Qd4! Qxc6 15.h6) 14.Bxc4 Qxc4 15.h6 g6 16.Qf3!±

13.Nb3 Qd6 14.Bg2

14.h6! was a strong move, since Black cannot afford 14...g6? 15.Bg2 Be6 16.Ne4± to be followed by Ne4–Nf6+.

14...Be6 15.h6 0-0-0?

This looked like a necessary pawn sacrifice for Black, but there's a subtle problem that neither player saw. 15...Rg8! 16.hxg7 Rxg7 17.Ne4 Qc7 18.Nf6+ Ke7 was an option that Black could not stomach despite the better piece development, as Black's king would remain stuck in the center. The engine likes it.

16.hxg7 Rhg8 17.Rxh7 Bf5

This is the position that Black was counting on for their compensation.

18.Bh3?!

The best way to maintain White's advantage was 18.Rh6 Be6 (18...Qe7 19.Qf3) 19.Qh5 Rxg7 20.0-0±

18...Bxh3 19.Rxh3 Qe6?

Position after 19...Qe6

Black's idea was to deny White development with tempo (Qg4 and O-O-O), while “gaining” a tempo on White's rook. Can you spot White's refutation of that? 19...Rxg7 20.Qg4+ Qe6 21.Qxe6+ fxe6 22.Nc5 Rxg5 23.Ke2 would be the correct way to proceed, but, of course, Black didn't give up material earlier to arrive at that!

20.Rg3?

White backs off, handing Black the initiative. In fairness, White spent a lot of time contemplating this move, so they must have tried hard to find a better line but simply didn't notice the stronger but non-trivial idea(s). 20.Rh6 Qf5 21.Qe2!! was the subtle refutation of the earlier 19...Qe6?—Black does not have time to capture either of White's g-pawns due to a hidden strike on the opposite wing, e.g. 21...Rxg7? 22.Rxc6+! bxc6 23.Qxa6+ and White has a decisive attack.

20...d4!

Seizing the opportunity for active counterplay!

21.Ne4?

Once again, bending to Black's pressure, rather than responding in kind: 21.Nc5 dxc3 (21...Qc4 22.N3e4 Nb4!? 23.Rc1) 22.Nxe6 Rxd1+ 23.Rxd1 fxe6 24.bxc3 Nd5=. These lines look inconclusive and not to anyone's advantage.

21...dxe3 22.Qg4?!

Opting to trade queens in order to reduce the pressure, but this seals Black's advantage. Notice that Black's pawn structure is superior. 22.Qe2 Nd4 23.Nxd4 exd4 24.Nf6! Rxg7 25.fxe3 was a way for White to fight back.

22...Qxg4 23.Rxg4 exf2+ 24.Nxf2?!

24.Kxf2 Rxg7 25.Rh4! =

24...Rxg7 25.Ke2 Nd5

Black's position 19 is preferable, but not winning.

26.Nd3?

26.Rh1

26...Rdg7?

Missing a chance to create connected passers and claim a strong advantage. 26...f5! 27.Rg3 e4 28.Ndc5 Rh7!

27.Rag1?

27.Rf1! insisting on trading a weakness for a weakness, while preventing Black's ...f7–f5 threat 27...f6 28.c4! Nf4+ 29.Nxf4 exf4 30.Rxf4 fxg5±

27...f6

Strong, but there is even stronger! 27...f5! 28.Rh4 Rxg5 29.Rxg5 Rxg5±

28.gxf6?

Black had laid a trap and White walks into it. 28.Rf1 would be the best attempt for White to survive the endgame down a pawn. 28...Rxc5 29.Rxc5 fxg5

28..Rxc4 29.Rxc4 Rxc4 30.f7 Rf4 31.Nxf4 Nxf4+

That this recapture came with check is apparently what White had overlooked in their calculations for move 28.

32.Ke3 Ng6?!

Attractive but not optimal by Black. 32...Ne6! 33.Nc5 Ncd8! is the better idea: controlling all access squares to Black's e5-pawn, while apprehending and preparing to capture White's f7-pawn. At this point, both players were very low on time, so decisions were necessarily made without thorough analysis. 34.Nxe6 (34.c4 Nf8 35.Ke4 Nxf7+) 34...Nxe6 35.Ke4 Ng5+ 36.Kxe5 Nxf7+-+

33.Nc5?

33.Ke4! Nd8 34.Kf5 Nf8 35.Kf6!? and White's king is very active, making conversion a far more difficult task.

33...Nd8 34.Ke4 Nxf7 35.Kf5 Ngh8?!

Seemingly holding everything together, but Black's pieces lack mobility as a result, and this will cost them the e5-pawn. 35...Nf8! was simply winning, holding the white king at bay, due to 36.Kf6? Nd7+-+

36.Kf6 Kc7 37.Ne4 Kc6 38.e4?

Allowing Black chances that they didn't notice and didn't take. 38.Ke6

38...a5?

39.b3?

39.Ke6. King activity is White's best chance against a relatively disorganized black cavalry.

39...b5??

Lesson to remember: Don't push pawns without due consideration, especially if those pawns will be needed alive to be able to win the game. 39...Nd6! was winning again, but with only seconds left on the clock before move 40, Black missed that opportunity too.

40.Ke6?

White, also in time trouble, passes by their best drawing chance. 40.cxb5+ Kxb5 41.a3! =

40...bxc4?!

40...b4#. When you strive to win, saving pawns is better than trading them when there are just a few pawns left in the game.

41.bxc4 Nd8+!

Finally, the time control has passed and with 30 added minutes Black took their time to find an effective route to victory. Paradoxically, that route passes through immediately giving away one of their two remaining pawns—but the payoff for that are the revived two knights!

42.Kxe5 Nhf7+ 43.Kd4 Ne6+ 44.Kc3 Nc5 45.Nd2 Kd6

Position after 45...Kd6

46.Kd4?!

White is lured by king activity around the central squares, but the last drawing opportunity was to focus on the sole remaining black pawn and to attempt to give away White's knight for it. If that were to happen, the resulting position—with two black knights versus White's couple of pawns—is still winning for Black, but not without excellent endgame technique. The principles have been described a century ago by famous endgame composer Alexey Troitsky, and during the game Black was trying to restore from memory those ideas, just in case. 46.Kb2! Moving toward Black's a-pawn... 46...Ne5 47.Nb3!? Nxc4+ (47...Nxb3? 48.axb3! Kc5 49.Ka3! = Black cannot make progress while also keeping their a-pawn from being traded.) 48.Kc3! Kd5! (48...Nxb3? 49.Kxc4! =) 49.Nxa5 Nxa5+

46...Nd8 47.Kc3 Nc6 48.Kb2 Ke5?! 49.Kc3?

A final error, allowing the trade of knights, which leads to a simple win by Black. 49.Nb3! Ne4 50.Ka3 Kd6 51.Ka4 Nc3+ 52.Ka3 a4 53.Kb2 Ne4 54.Ka3 axb3 55.axb3 Kc5 56.b4+ Nxb4 57.Kb2 Kd4+. Although this is winning for Black, doing it within the 50-move rule may be difficult in practice.

49...Ne4+ 50.Nxe4 Kxe4 51.a3 a4 52.c5 Kd5! 53.Kd3 Kxc5 54.Kc3 Nd4 55.Kb2 Kc4 56.Ka2 Kc3 57.Ka1 Kb3 58.Kb1 Kxa3

In retrospect, this complicated game showcased fascinating middlegame and endgame ideas.

The 2022 Ignacio Perez Memorial Northwest Chess Grand Prix (Final Report)

Murlin Varner, retired bean counter

I write this column with great anticipation and great regret. The Grand Prix has been a feature of Northwest Chess for over 25 years, the last 20 under my direction. Through most of that time we had the participation of two states, Washington and Oregon, then three with the addition of Idaho. Over the last few years, we've had to drop back to two states with the withdrawal of Oregon, and even just one state when Idaho declined to participate. This year, we were able to renew the Idaho contest, but only with partial participation. Now, after twenty years, I need to hang up my spreadsheet and focus on my new adventure, running a used bookstore in Olympia.

Three very large events near the end of the year have jumbled the standings significantly. Many leaders from the standings published in the December magazine are no longer in those leading roles. The Washington Class Championships at the end of November had 125 participants and a multiplier of 5x. Then two events the weekend before Christmas mixed things up even more, with the Washington Winter Classic having 46 players and a 2x multiplier and the MexInsurance FIDE Open in Boise hosting 50 players and a massive 6x multiplier. Notable in that latter event was the fact that it lured one of Idaho's few Masters, Jeff Gamble, out of a retirement of over 30 years.

Prizes will be issued in the near future, once all the GP fees are collected. In the Washington and "Other" categories, there will be 13 prizes awarded, with first and second in Master, Expert, A, B, C, and D and below, plus an additional prize for the first overall (Emerson Wong-Godfrey in Washington, Arnold Yang of Oregon in the "others"). In Idaho, the Master and Expert categories are combined for a total of 11 prizes, with George Lundy taking the top honors. Remarkably for a pair of states in the far-left corner of the country, the top 15 in the "Other" group hail from ten different states.

Well, I won't be around nagging you to play more, but don't let that stop you. Our organizers rely upon the faithful players to keep things going and growing.

Don't let me down. And if you are in Olympia, come visit me at my store, Turtleman Used Books.

Data below current through December 31.
